The racing began with a six furlong dash. Clothe looked a moral in the morning, but for some reason size was withdrawn, leaving a sorry lot of nags to contest for the purse.

Marcellus was finally selected to carry the money and went to the poat a favorite.

Home kun was second cheice, while Leather Stocking was third choice.

The talent picked them wrong, for Leather Stocking made all the running and won easily. Marcellus could not do better than third, Spartacus, a 15 to 1 chance, splitting the pair. Leigh, a red-hot favorite in the second race, won the money for the talent very easily. Lake, the outsider, beat Trump, second choice, out for the place.

The talent scored again in the third race, Narka colt galloping in an casy winner by a length and a half from Red Elm in the fast time of 0.55%. This youngster is developing a great turn of speed.

Reporter, at 12 to 1, dropped into third place. Genevieve broke down.

Mayora Sanford, at the head of a large crowd of his supporters, and escorted by Chief of Police Wood, appeared at City Hall at 11.15 o'clock. He waited straight to the Mayor's office and entered.

"Good morning, Mr. Gleason," he said.

"Good morning, Mr. Gleason," replied Gleason, at the two shook hands across the pail. Then Mr. Sanford said, slowly and distinctly: Then Mr. Sanford said, slowly and distinctly:

"I now repeat the formal demand which i made Jan. 2 for possession of the office of Mayor of Long Island City."

"I am the Mayor of Long Island City." replied Gleason. "and I will stay here until am forced out by the courts."

Loud cries of "Put him out!" "Throw him out!" "Stop his slow!" began to be heard from Sanford's adherents, who had thronged into the corridor and filled up the space before the rail in the Mayor's office.

tileason shook his first at the crowd, and shouted back: "You cannot do it! I am Mayor, and I will stay here till the courts order me out!"

Then Mr. Sanford catled on Chief of Police Wood to take possession of the Mayor's office in the name of the city. The Chief, who is even bigger shan Mayor Gleason, weighing over 250 pounds, stepped forward, and placing his hand on Gleason's coat collar, said:

Mr. Gleason, you will have to vacate this office.

The cries of the crowd were growing louder and more carnest, and Gleason, after pointing into the faces or the men in the room, then said:

"I surrender to force, but it is an outrage on me and on the people of Long Island City."

Then he went to his desk and gathered up some private papers and left the office. The air was quickly littled with cheers by the Sanford men.
